Influenced by electric rock / blues guitar greats and nominated by the Music City Blues Society for the Bluesy Award, in the category of "Other Instrumentalist" for three consecutive years – Victoria Hammill is a modern pioneer in electric violin. She is joined with native Brazilian, Luiz Coutinho (a.k.a. The Batikum), who has worked with Victoria both on tour and in the studio for eight years as a drummer and percussionist, melding The Batikum's signature cross cultural influences to the mix. Native Brazilian guitarist, Sergio Yazbek, who has worked with and toured with many wellknown artists, such as; Cidade Negra and others, adds a repertoire of diverse stylings and incredible tone, energy, and passion for dynamics. And, Costa Rican bassist Lilliam Mayela Shepherd, who toured with the International Cherry Band, grooves with slap bass funk and Carribean Latin rhythms.

In the Winter and Spring of 2015, VICTORIA  ZETA FIVE produced and released three new singles, Quiet Storm / New Americas, Janaina, and Fast Track, which have received great response through Radio Airplay from hundreds of fans, with comments like: "This is great stuff !!!! I luv it!!!", "Good Brazilian reminiscenses", and "Good vibe and great voice, wish I could see her live".

In addition to their singles, VICTORIA  ZETA FIVE released their rock - blues - jazz album in April 2006. Titled To Be Announced, the album showcases Victoria's expressive electric violin leads, voice, and extraordinary musicians, and has received great reviews:

"The band is composed of some brilliant musicians, but dare I say the things Victoria does with her violin are simply magnificent." — UNSIGNED, The Largest Magazine Dedicated to Indie Music

"Running her dramatically altered violin through a Mesa Boogie amp, she makes a mind-bendingly original bowed sound; if you weren't watching, you'd want to see how a guitarist was creating such wildly expressive solos." — Michael McCall, Nashville Scene, Critics' Picks
